

DECODING THE COACHING GENOME

Program details for Decoding The Coaching Genome Accredited with 24 CCEU by the International Coach Federation

You are a certified, professional coach. You have made it through the challenging and enlightening journey of learning how to be aware, actively listen, evoke transformation and help your client bring it all together into actions that turn their dreams into a reality.

You have gone through that journey yourself and you have changed immensely in the process of it.

After hundreds or thousands of coaching hours you now wonder: What is next? How can I go deeper? What would make me a more impactful and authentic coach? What would get me closer towards Coaching Mastery?

This is where Decoding The Coaching Genome comes in.

Many coaches ask us what is different about the program because at first glance, it might seem similar to many other Continuing Coach Education programs out there. And while there is a similarity in the professional standards we build upon, we have taken Continuing Coach Education to a whole new level.

A high-quality course environment

Decoding The Coaching Genome is only for certified coaches to ensure that you are developing your Mastery skills with people who have also committed to build their professional coaching mastery. There is one exception to this rule: some of our students bring a vast amount of experience and skill, which makes them eligible to join the program before or directly after completing their coaching certification. In all cases, however, each one of our students is committed to deepening their personal growth and growing their professional coaching skills in order to attain coaching mastery.

Experiential online learning

The program is entirely virtual, yet you will feel like you are in the same room with your fellow students and course leaders. Each 90 minute session is designed to be 100% experiential, with lots of space to practice, reflect and learn. We use Adobe Connect as a course platform but have “manipulated” it so that you can BE (in) the experience, rather than just taking part in a course.

It is all about the journey

Think about an ideal coaching session: It starts with setting the foundation with your client, requires you to deeply listen and be aware of what is said or not being said, results in tangible steps of action paired with clear accountability. The whole process includes real, thought-provoking questioning, the unattached presence of you as a coach (and witness!) - all held by an energy of trust and intimacy.

Decoding The Coaching Genome is structured just like a masterful coaching journey with a client. In the first four weeks you get to set the foundation for yourself: You explore who you are as a coach, you receive individual one-on-one coaching, you learn about different types of agreement and you start creating a safe and intimate space with your fellow students.

During weeks five through eight, you take your (re-)defined purpose and grounding as a coach a step further: You reprogram your brain to integrate new dimensions of listening, you find out what makes your questions powerful, you play with metaphors and you explore what lies outside of your comfort zone. In the process of this transformation, you will receive an individual one-on-one mentoring session with one of our masterful faculty.

In the last four weeks of the program, you bring it all together: You create from and with your fellow students to expand your range, you jump the gap between your own vision and reality and you start co-leading the group sessions. In the very last session, you are an active part of a live supervision! All of it is integrated by the wisdom gained in your own individual one-on-one supervision session with one of our masterful faculty.
